

The S-16, America's largest submarine, sliding down the ways at Bridgeport, Conn. She carries a crew of fifty-four, is of 900 tons displacement and has a cruising radius of 12,000 miles.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Miss Elizabeth C. Stone, daughter of Melville E. Stone. She was the sponsor for the American Press, a Hog Island built ship, so named as a tribute to our newspapers.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

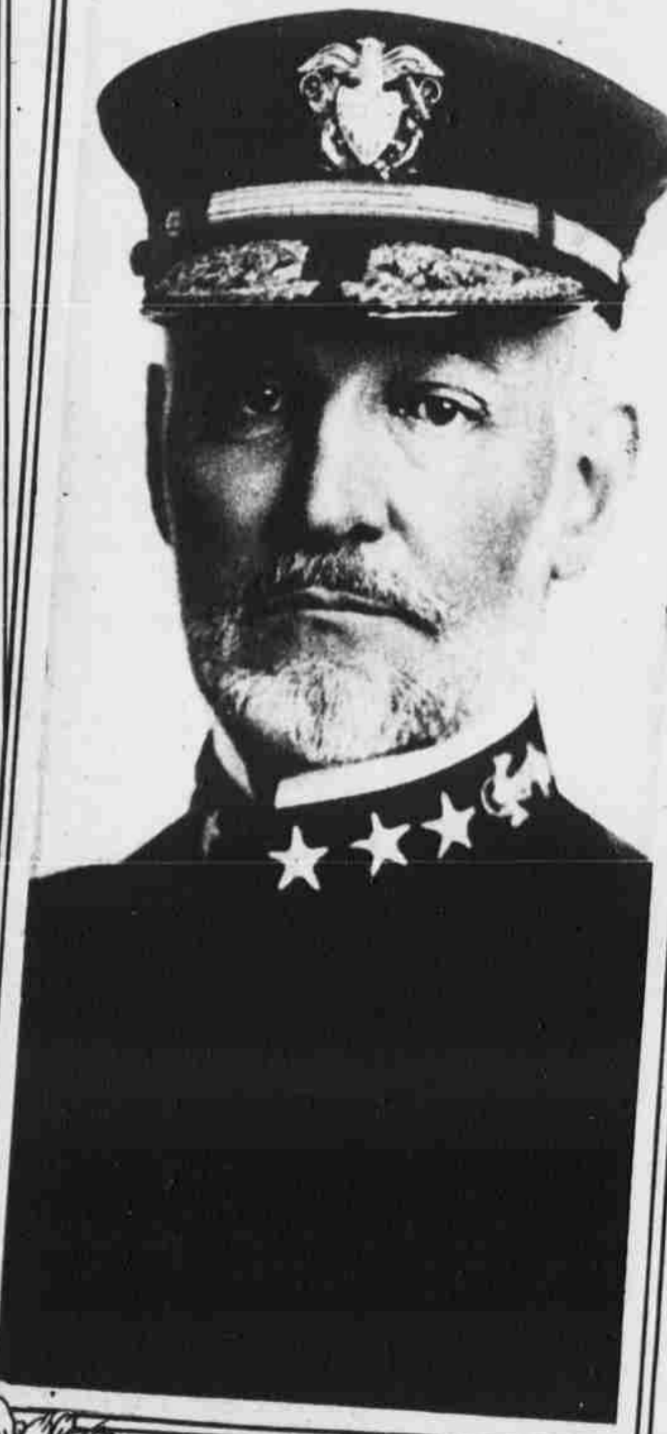

Baroness Speck von Sternburg, widow of a former German Ambassador to the United States. She was Miss Lillian May Langham of Louisville, Ky., and though she had a fortune of $1,000,000 is practically penniless. She may renounce German citizenship in an effort to regain her wealth.

By a Sun Staff Photographer.

Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian philosopher, author and poet, and Mme. Maeterlinck, photographed on their arrival here recently.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Admiral William Sowden Sims, who refused to accept a Distinguished Service Medal from the Secretary of the Navy. He wrote a caustic letter saying the methods of award tended to undermine the morale of the service.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.